U.S. Flood Rehabilitation to Cost Billions

Mississippi Dikes Tested As Ohio Tide Sweeps On

As Waters Recede in Upper Valley of Ohio River, 392-mile Arkansas Levee is Threatened; Known Dead Now 293, With 1,000,000 Homeless; Thousands Moved from Paducah, Ky.

Associated Press

The flooded Ohio River crashed against weakening levees today on its cresting descent to the Mississippi. Disaster figures: The known dead stood at 293, the homeless passed the 1,000,000 mark, an additional 500,000 were endangered, and property losses were estimated at more than $400,000,000.

Along the 1,000-mile trail of desolation the slowly receding waters of the Ohio apped idly at empty houses in empty towns.

The cost of rehabilitation, now becoming of paramount interest in northern Ohio River valley communities, where the worst apparently has passed, drew estimates running into billions. Officials said the average cost of cleaning and drying out a single flooded home was $350.

THOUSANDS MOVED

Fresh dangers cropped out by the dozens as the crest of the flood swung south.

At Paducah, Ky., the next point of crisis, Red Cross officials hurried to evacuate thousands of reluctant inhabitants in advance of the oncoming flood peak.

Col. Chat Rhodes, U.S. army engineer, warned of a sixty-one-foot crest within the next forty-eight hours. Below, at Cairo, Ill., only men remained in the island city to bolster the sixty-foot levee against an expected four-foot rise in the river. Eight thousand—mostly women and children and the aged—had already fled.

At Mound City, Ill., a back levee collapsed, routing 650 men, fifty women and 175 civilian Conservation Corps boys to higher ground.

LONG DIKE IN DANGER

On the Mississippi River itself, now beginning to stir uneasily under the vanguard lash of the Ohio's flood load, the Melwood levee was threatened with collapse along its 392-mile boundary on the Arkansas side. (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Little Change In Temperature

There will be little change, during the next twenty-four hours at least, in the cold weather. The cold will continue throughout the night, with northeast winds, but very little snow. Since January 1 nine and a half inches of snow have fallen in Victoria. Snow fell fairly heavy for a few hours yesterday evening, but the strong wind kept streets and sidewalks clear.

The minimum temperature this morning was twenty-six degrees. By noon it was two degrees higher.

Death Asked For Group at Moscow

As Trial of Karl Radek and 16 Others For Plots They Confessed Ends Prosecutor Urges Court to Order Executions

Associated Press

Moscow, Jan. 28.—Seventeen confessed plotters "must pay with their heads" for attempting to overthrow the Soviet Government of Joseph Stalin, Prosecutor Andrei Vishinsky demanded in court today.

The Russian Attorney-General in his closing trial statement, used the language of Karl Radek, celebrated newspaper commentator and one of the prisoners, in demanding the death penalty.

An article by Radek in the government newspaper Izvestia, last August demanded a similar sentence for six-

INMATES SAID TO LIVE IN FEAR

Psychiatrist Testifies at Inquiry Into Home in Burnaby

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 28.—Commissioner H. I. Bird's investigation of administration of the Home of the Friendless at Burnaby, B.C., was adjourned to an indefinite date today after Dr. James Gordon McKay, psychiatrist, testified inmates of the home operated by Mrs. Laura Crouch, former Winnipeg woman, lived in "constant fear of incurring the wrath of God."

Further sessions of the inquiry will be held at West Summerland, B.C., next week. Later hearings will be resumed at Burnaby, when witnesses called by Mrs. Crouch will be heard.

"The general impression I received when I examined ten of the inmates (of the home) Wednesday was one of fear of what Christ would do to them if they deviated one iota from the path laid down for them," Dr. McKay said.

"It put me in mind of the Voodooism, when medicine men, through their teachings, scare the ordinary members of the tribe into submission."

IN COLD ROOM

Dr. McKay said he had made his examination "in a barren room, just as cold as it was outside."

He said that even under ordinary home conditions, it would require several years for any inmate of the home to become re-established in the world.

Cold in Britain Eases Epidemic

Canadian Press

London, Jan. 28.—While Great Britain today was in the grip of the severest cold wave of the winter, health authorities were hopeful it would bring a sharp halt to the ravages of influenza, which has already taken the heaviest toll since the scourge of 1918.

The death toll for major cities and towns for the past two weeks has reached 2,336, according to the Ministry of Health.

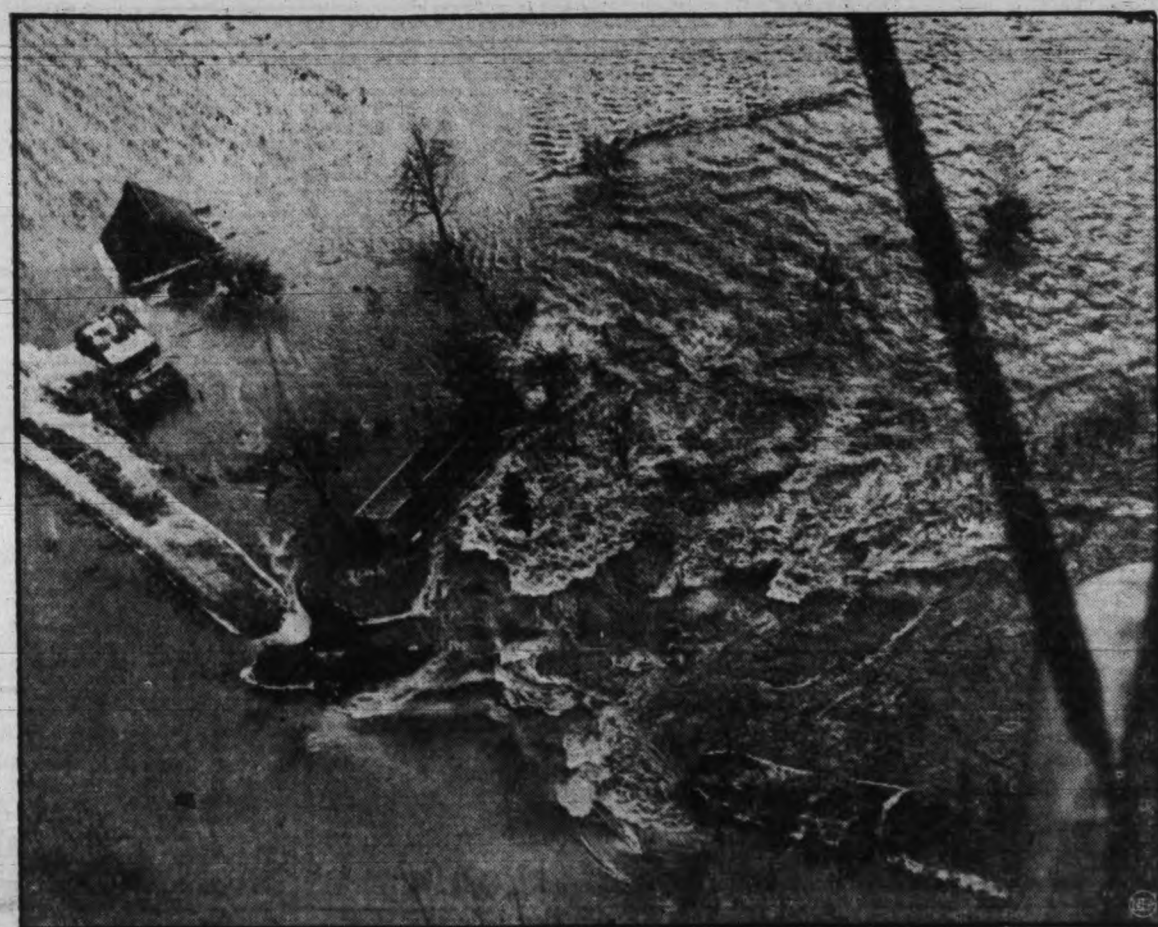

Pope Suffering Intense Pain

Canadian Press

Vatican City, Jan. 28.—Pope Pius was suddenly stricken by agonizing pains in his leg today as he was talking to Cardinal Ceronetti. The Pontiff was forced to cut short his audience.

Earlier, increasing doses of valian drops had helped ease the pain he was suffering.

Levee Blasted to Save City as River Flood Rises

A vivid impression is given by the above air picture of the scene that was witnessed when U.S. army engineers gave the first big test to the billion-dollar flood control works created in the Mississippi and Ohio River valleys since the great disaster of 1927. With the rising flood of the Ohio threatening Cairo, Ill., where it empties into the Mississippi, the engineers made a breach in the dike at Bird's Point. The rush of water as it started to flood a chosen area of 131,000 acres, mostly farm lands, is shown. A strut of the plane from which the picture was made appears at the right.

B.C. Voters' Lists To Be Completed

Defence Advice Given Canada

Sir H. P. Croft, British M.P., Suggests Dominion Acquire 1,000 Fighting Planes

Swansea, Wales, Jan. 28.—A complete air defence force of 1,000 fighting planes was advocated for Canada today by Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative member of Parliament for Bournemouth.

"Collective security within the Empire is essential," he said, "in view of the failure of collective security for the world."

Commenting on the need for air strength and equality in the air with the next largest power, Sir Henry urged that Canada, Australia, South Africa and India should each provide immediately a complete defence air force of 1,000 planes. New Zealand should have an air force of 400 planes, he said, while each crown colony should equip from five to twenty squadrons according to its means and population.

LOANS SUGGESTED

Sir Henry suggested loans should be floated by the city of London at the lowest possible interest rates to develop the Empire, and that such rates should be made available particularly to those dominions willing to equip themselves with an adequate system of air defence.

"What is needed is a new spirit of kinship, reunion among all our peoples of common breed in a common purpose," he declared. "We are fools not to stand together. When separated we may perish at the hands of a covetous martial state."

STEEL TRADE IN U.S. GROWING

Associated Press

New York, Jan. 28.—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation reported today the best fourth quarter profit since 1929 and the best annual earnings since 1930. Earnings in the final quarter were $5,592,492, or $1.08 a common share, compared with $2,396,025, in the like quarter of 1935.

Full Registration Planned This Year; Nothing Decided About Election, Says Pattullo; Election Commissioners Named Here

The provincial voters lists in all ridings will be completely brought up to date but as yet the government does not know when the next general election will be called.

"This was the substance of an announcement given out here today over the signature of Premier Pattullo, who left Vancouver last night for the east."

The appointment of more than 100 elections commissioners in eleven ridings, including thirty-two in Victoria, to assist in completing the voters' lists was also made public. This followed the appointment of eighty-four commissioners last week and various others at different times during the last few months.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

The Premier's statement regarding election prospects and the voters' lists follows:

"There seem to be numerous election prophets at the present time. As I do not know myself when an election will be held, I do not see how anyone else could know. We are arranging for complete registration, which probably leads to the conclusion that there will be an early election."

"A plank in the Liberal platform pledged a voters' list kept up to date. After every election all who do not vote are struck off the list. Some (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Governor Will Visit Roosevelt

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Returning the "good neighbor" call of President Roosevelt to Quebec last summer, the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, plans to visit Washington for a few days shortly after Easter. It was learned from an authoritative source today. It will be the first time a Governor-General of Canada has officially visited a United States President.

Log Revenues Up $530,000

Revival of the logging industry in the British Columbia woods last year swelled provincial revenues from its forests by more than $830,000, according to figures made public today by Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands.

From all sources connected with the forests the treasury derived $3,433,503 revenue, as compared with $2,900,403 in 1935.

The actual timber operations in the woods accounted for $2,327,394 of the total revenue, up $533,000 from the previous year. The big increase in the cut was responsible.

Royalties and taxes produced $1,910,468, against $1,605,322. Stumpage charges produced $446,186, against $337,560.

Timber license rentals, the other big sources of forest revenue, brought in $610,421 against $496,386.

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 28.—Labor Secretary Frances Perkins dispatched a representative to Anderson, Ind., today to investigate charges by the striking United Automobile Workers that the General Motors Corporation had incited violence there.

Associated Press

Detroit, Jan. 28.—Three organizers for the United Automobile Workers of America who encountered belligerent anti-strike crowds in Bay City and Saginaw, Mich., were in a Flint hospital today recovering from injuries.

They were members of a group of five union organizers who set out from Flint yesterday to carry on a membership campaign among General Motors employees in Bay City and Saginaw.

ONE MAN MISSING

One, John Mayo of Pittsburgh, disappeared during a clash with a hostile crowd at Saginaw during which police took the union men to police headquarters for safekeeping.

Robert Travis, U.A.W.A. organizer at Flint, expressed concern for Mayo's safety. State police were asked to search for him. Saginaw police said they had received no such request.

FIVE BENNETT REFORM ACTS ARE BARRED

Privy Council in London Declares Beyond Canadian Parliament's Powers are Employment Insurance Act, Weekly Rest Day, Minimum Wages and Hours of Work and Marketing Act; Rulings Uphold Trade and Industry Act, Code Section 498A and Farmers' Creditors' Act; Interpretations Limit Federal Power.

Canadian Press

London, Jan. 28.—Measures passed by the Canadian Parliament during the Bennett administration dealing with unemployment insurance, hours of labor, minimum wages and marketing were declared unconstitutional today by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here.

Legislation on trade practices arising from the recommendations made by the royal commission on price spreads and mass buying was upheld.

Their lordships handed down judgment on six appeals from the Supreme Court of Canada. The decisions define the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the provinces in respect to the legislation, as defined by the British North America Act. Four of the appeals were brought by the provinces. All were dismissed. Two were taken by the Dominion. These also were dismissed.

DECLARED 'ULTRA VIRES'

The Judicial Committee declared the following measures passed by the Dominion Parliament in 1934 and 1935, most of them in 1935 near the end of the term of the Conservative government of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett to be ultra vires, or beyond authority of the federal Parliament:

1. The Employment and Social Insurance Act, 1935. This measure provided for the creation of a contributory system of employment insurance and the setting up of employment agencies. The Canadian Supreme Court held the act invalid. Their lordships agreed and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

2. The Weekly Day of Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act, the Minimum Wage Act, and the Limitation of Hours of Work Act, 1935. These three separate acts were based on conventions agreed to by the International Labor Office at Geneva and ratified by the Dominion Parliament under its treaty-making powers. The Canadian Supreme Court split evenly on the legislation. The Privy Council declared each act to be ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

MARKETING ACT

3. The Natural Products Marketing Act, 1934, and its amending act of the following year. These measures provided for the setting up of marketing boards for various classes of products with wide powers for control by the majority of producers. The Supreme Court of Canada unanimously declared the act ultra vires. The Attorney-General of British Columbia appealed to the Privy Council to have the legislation declared valid. The appeal was dismissed.

MEASURES UPHOLD

The following measures were declared valid:

1. The Dominion Trade and Industry Act, 1935. This legislation authorized the establishment of a federal commission with powers to regulate business provincially, interprovincially and in relation to the Dominion as a whole. It arose from recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying. The Supreme Court of Canada declared some sections valid and others invalid. The Judicial Committee found valid all the sections of the act put before it, dismissed the appeal of the Ontario Attorney-General and allowed the cross-appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada. Madrid Troops Win Positions

Surprise Attack Claimed as Strategic Success By Socialists

Madrid, Jan. 28.—Government militiamen, driving against insurgent ranks in a surprise dawn offensive, captured strategic positions in west park dominating University City, the Emergency Defence Council announced today.

Insurgents were driven from the fortified zone of the northeastern Madrid area to a tenuous position in trenches at the bottom of a hill in the park. Gen. Jose Miaja said. The attack, Gen. Miaja said, was "one of the most important" since government troops temporarily dislodged insurgents from their entrenchments at the "Hill of the Angels," eight-and-a-half miles south of the capital.

OTHER SUCCESSES CLAIMED

Government commanders also reported fresh successes in southern Jaen Province, where Socialist fighters reached striking distance of the gates of Porcuna.

Ottawa Studies New Decisions

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Government circles here today attached great importance to the ruling of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London on Canadian social legislation arising out of the Treaty of Versailles. It is regarded as the first definite interpretation of the limitation of the federal parliament's power to give effect to international treaties since Canada acquired the status of a nation and began to make treaties on her own account.

First United Reports Heard

Fine Statements Are Presented to Congregation at Annual Meeting

An increase in general revenue, a net gain in congregation membership, a reduction in the debt on the new organ and generally encouraging reports from all departments of the church, were among the features of the annual congregational meeting in First United Church yesterday evening.

The average attendance at quarterly communions was 1,047. The liability on the organ was reduced to $4,600 by a payment of $531. The congregation is now considering a new project in the form of adequate Sunday school premises, for which $1,000 has already been subscribed.

All retiring members of the board of management were returned to office. They were Mrs. A. S. Christie, W. F. Adams, Robert Morrison, E. M. McGregor, S. J. Drake, W. McGlashan and J. A. Barnwell. Walter Fletcher was re-elected chief usher.

THANKS TO MINISTERS

The thanks of the congregation were conveyed to the ministerial staff by Alex. McKeachie. The work of Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson, Rev. E. W. Horton and Rev. Dr. Simon Fraser was mentioned individually.

All departments of the church were warmly praised by Dr. Wilson in his report. He made special mention of the choir, under W. C. Pye, with George Peaker as organist.

Prof. E. S. Parr, as Sunday school superintendent, reported for his department, and other reports were submitted by Mrs. A. Chisholm for the Women's Missionary Society; Miss Jean Polson for the Golden Link Auxiliary; Miss Gladys Schroeder for the Gleaners' Mission Circle, and Grant McKinnon for the Junior Mission Band.

Judgments Set Limits For Parliament

CODE PENALTIES

2. Section 498A of the Criminal Code of Canada. This provides penalties for violation of the regulations set up by the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. A majority decision of the Canadian Supreme Court upheld the legislation. The Privy Council also found the sub-section valid and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of British Columbia.

FARMERS' DEBT ACT

3. The Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, 1934, and an amending act of the following year. This provided a means by which a farmer and his creditors might be brought together for a settlement of debts along bankruptcy lines but without actual recourse to the bankruptcy court. It was upheld by the Supreme Court at Ottawa. The Judicial Committee of the Attorney-General of British Columbia.

Of the legislation, only the National Products Marketing Act and the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act were placed in operation. The former was declared ultra vires and the latter valid.

LENGTHIEST JUDGMENT

The decision on minimum wages and hours of labor was the longest judgment, their lordships remarking that the appeal afforded them an opportunity of stating their opinion on some matters arising in the remainder of the appeals.

Under the British Empire, their lordships declared, it was a well established rule that the making of treaties was an executive act, while the performance of their obligations, if they entailed alteration of the existing domestic law, required legislative action.

In some other countries, they proceeded, the stipulations of a treaty duly ratified did not within the Empire have the force of law by virtue of the treaty alone.

CANADA'S PROBLEM COMPLEX

In a unitary state whose legislature possessed unlimited powers the problem was simple. Parliament would either fulfill or not treaty obligations imposed on the state by the executive. But in a state where the legislature did not possess absolute authority, or in a federal state where the legislative authority was limited by a constitutional document or divided up between different legislatures in accordance with the classes of subject matter submitted for legislation, the problem was complex.

LEGISLATIVE COMPETENCE

Their lordships intimated they had come to the conclusion the reference could be decided on the question of legislative competence alone. Counsel had not suggested any doubt existed concerning the international status of Canada, involving her competence to enter into international treaties. The first ground on which counsel had sought to base validity of the legislation was Section 132 of the British North America Act, 1867, as it was sought to apply this section to conventions when ratified the answer was plain.

The obligations, their lordships declared, are not the obligations of Canada as a part of the British Empire, but of Canada by virtue of her new status as an international person and do not arise under a treaty between the British Empire and foreign countries.

OPINION IN 1867
"While it is true, as was then pointed out, that it was not contemplated in 1867 that the Dominion should possess treaty-making power, it is impossible to strain the section so as to cover the unanticipated event."

"It appears that all the Supreme Court members rejected the contention based on section 132 and their lordships are in full agreement."

CIVIL RIGHTS
"If, therefore, section 132 is out of the way, the validity of the legislation can only depend on section 91-2 of the B.N.A. Act. It had to be admitted that normally this legislation came within the classes of subjects assigned exclusively to the provincial legislatures, namely, property and civil rights."

"This was, in fact, expressly decided in respect to these same conventions by the Supreme Court in 1935. How then can the Legislature be within the legislative powers under section 91? It is not within the enumerated classes of subjects of section 91 and appears to be expressly excluded from the general powers given under the section's first words."

DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS
"For the purposes of section 91-2, namely the distribution of legislative powers between the Dominion and the provinces, there is no such thing as treaty legislation as such. The judgment proceeded. 'The distribution is based on classes of subjects and as a treaty deals with the particular class of subjects so will the legislative power of performing it be ascertained.'"

"It would be remarkable that while the Dominion could not initiate legislation, however desirable, which affected civil rights in the provinces, yet its government, not responsible to the provinces, need only agree with a foreign country to enact such legislation."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE
In declaring unconstitutional the Employment and Social Insurance Act, the Judicial Committee remarked that a strong appeal had been made concerning the importance of unemployment insurance at the time of the act. But there was agreement between all the Supreme Court members that it could not be supported on the suggested existence of any special emergency.

Relief Rolls Show Drought Increase

Assuming the Dominion has collected a fund through taxation, it by no means follows that any legislation disposing of it is necessarily within Dominion competence.

TRADE COMMISSION
On the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act, which was held valid, their lordships declared that except the Canadian judges' opinion as to the validity of section 18 and 19, they agreed with the Supreme Court.

"No one has challenged the Dominion's competence to pass legislation relating to trade marks," the Privy Council judgment said, "and if the Dominion has the power to create trade mark rights for individual traders, it is difficult to see why that power should not extend to what is now a usual feature of national and international commerce, namely, the national market."

The Judicial Committee dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Ontario and allowed a cross-appeal by the Attorney-General of Canada stating sections 18 and 19 are not ultra vires. The judgment added that sections 23 and 25 also were not ultra vires.

CODE SECTION
The judgment upholding the validity of Section 498A of the Criminal Code was very short. Their lordships agreed with the Chief Justice of Canada that the appeal was covered by the proprietary articles case of 1931.

"There seems no reason in the present case to suppose that the Dominion is using the criminal law as a pretext or that the Legislature is in any way interfering with provincial or civil rights," the judgment said. "Their lordships opine that no part of the section is ultra vires."

FARMERS' ACT
Regarding the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, their lordships declared they were unable to hold that the statutory conditions of insolvency enabling a creditor or debtor to invoke the aid of the bankruptcy laws were intended to be stereotyped under the B.N.A. Act so as to confine the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada to the then existing legislation.

"Their lordships are unable to accept the contention that the act is not genuine legislation relating to bankruptcy and insolvency," the judgment said. "The appeal is dismissed without costs."

unproclaimed. It gives the province national and stronger powers of market control, and the government will now consider whether it is necessary to invoke this section. It would, in any case, be submitted to the courts for a ruling before anything is done, Dr. MacDonald said.

FARMERS' DEBT ACT
Of immediate effect in the province will be the decision upholding the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act. This is a piece of legislation enabling farmers to get a scaling down of their debts. In British Columbia millions of dollars are owed the government in connection with irrigation and diking schemes, land settlements and tax arrears. The Attorney-General's opposition to the measure, claimed it should not apply to crown contracts of this kind, and that if any adjustments were to be made the province itself should pay now much and when. The act has been in operation, but only as relating to private debts. Through injunctive proceedings, the Attorney-General prevented its application to crown contracts. Now that it is declared valid farmers may seek a scaling down on their debts to the government.

WAGE LAWS
The Privy Council rulings on the three wage acts—hours of work, minimum wages and weekly rest in seven—leaves this field of legislation in provincial hands. All three measures were based on the Dominion's right to invade the provincial jurisdiction by invoking international treaty conventions. If this had been upheld, the existing British Columbia laws, which set hours of work and minimum wages for close to 150,000 people, would have been superseded. British Columbia recorded its one major victory before the court in retaining control over its own labor laws. Fear had been expressed that if the Dominion law was held valid, the standard of minimum wages in British Columbia would be lowered to conform with the east.

This province took no part in the hearing on the Dominion Trade and Industry Act, which was upheld. In the Employment and Social Insurance Act, which was thrown out, British Columbia simply stated its position as not opposing the Dominion taking powers of this sort provided it assumed full responsibility for the unemployment problem.

TRADE COMMISSION
On the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act, which was held valid, their lordships declared that except the Canadian judges' opinion as to the validity of section 18 and 19, they agreed with the Supreme Court.

"No one has challenged the Dominion's competence to pass legislation relating to trade marks," the Privy Council judgment said, "and if the Dominion has the power to create trade mark rights for individual traders, it is difficult to see why that power should not extend to what is now a usual feature of national and international commerce, namely, the national market."

The Judicial Committee dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Ontario and allowed a cross-appeal by the Attorney-General of Canada stating sections 18 and 19 are not ultra vires. The judgment added that sections 23 and 25 also were not ultra vires.

CODE SECTION
The judgment upholding the validity of Section 498A of the Criminal Code was very short. Their lordships agreed with the Chief Justice of Canada that the appeal was covered by the proprietary articles case of 1931.

"There seems no reason in the present case to suppose that the Dominion is using the criminal law as a pretext or that the Legislature is in any way interfering with provincial or civil rights," the judgment said. "Their lordships opine that no part of the section is ultra vires."

FARMERS' ACT
Regarding the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, their lordships declared they were unable to hold that the statutory conditions of insolvency enabling a creditor or debtor to invoke the aid of the bankruptcy laws were intended to be stereotyped under the B.N.A. Act so as to confine the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada to the then existing legislation.

"Their lordships are unable to accept the contention that the act is not genuine legislation relating to bankruptcy and insolvency," the judgment said. "The appeal is dismissed without costs."

Will Go Ahead

unproclaimed. It gives the province national and stronger powers of market control, and the government will now consider whether it is necessary to invoke this section. It would, in any case, be submitted to the courts for a ruling before anything is done, Dr. MacDonald said.

FARMERS' DEBT ACT
Of immediate effect in the province will be the decision upholding the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act. This is a piece of legislation enabling farmers to get a scaling down of their debts. In British Columbia millions of dollars are owed the government in connection with irrigation and diking schemes, land settlements and tax arrears. The Attorney-General's opposition to the measure, claimed it should not apply to crown contracts of this kind, and that if any adjustments were to be made the province itself should pay now much and when. The act has been in operation, but only as relating to private debts. Through injunctive proceedings, the Attorney-General prevented its application to crown contracts. Now that it is declared valid farmers may seek a scaling down on their debts to the government.

WAGE LAWS
The Privy Council rulings on the three wage acts—hours of work, minimum wages and weekly rest in seven—leaves this field of legislation in provincial hands. All three measures were based on the Dominion's right to invade the provincial jurisdiction by invoking international treaty conventions. If this had been upheld, the existing British Columbia laws, which set hours of work and minimum wages for close to 150,000 people, would have been superseded. British Columbia recorded its one major victory before the court in retaining control over its own labor laws. Fear had been expressed that if the Dominion law was held valid, the standard of minimum wages in British Columbia would be lowered to conform with the east.

This province took no part in the hearing on the Dominion Trade and Industry Act, which was upheld. In the Employment and Social Insurance Act, which was thrown out, British Columbia simply stated its position as not opposing the Dominion taking powers of this sort provided it assumed full responsibility for the unemployment problem.

HOLLING'S REPORT
Montreal, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press).—Holling's Consolidated Gold Mines, in a preliminary statement today, reported net profit of $5,798,744 during the past year, compared with $4,922,929 in 1935. Total income was $15,174,386, an increase of about $800,000.

a matter of conjecture. Mayor Miller said there were 200 dead after the city's health officers admitted the bodies of 130 victims had been recovered.

FORCES READY
The War Department was advised its forces were ready on a moment's notice to evacuate by land and water residents of any areas threatened when the flood crest pours down the Mississippi next week.

Reassuring words came, however, from engineers who said the river's $1,000,000,000 dike system from Cairo, Ill., to the Gulf of Mexico showed no signs of weakness yet.

FRENCH BANK RATE RAISED
Discount Figure Increased From 2 to 4 Per Cent to Halt Speculation

Paris, Jan. 28.—The Bank of France, attempting to discourage borrowing for speculative purposes, boosted its discount rate from 2 to 4 per cent today.

British bankers with whom the Paris government is negotiating a $250,000,000 loan demanded the curb on speculative borrowing. French financial sources declared banks had been "dumping" collateral into the Bank of France for discount, with a consequent heavy drain on the national currency.

The first changes in money rates since October 15, also applied to thirty-day loans and loans on securities, followed disclosure by informed sources that Georges Bonnet, new French ambassador to the United States, probably will seek permanent stabilization of sterling, the franc and United States dollar.

Mississippi Dikes Tested as Ohio Flood Sweeps On

Hard-hit Louisville, with the highest death toll—at least 300, Mayor Neville Miller said—in the disaster area, had its hopes darkened again today as rain began to fall.

In Tennessee, levee workers battled desperately to save the dike above Tiptonville.

MANY WATCHING
High water that passed Cairo when army engineers dynamited the Bird's Point—New Madrid "fuse plug," to relieve pressure of the beleaguered city, rose steadily in the 181,000-acre spillway basin today. Hundreds who were driven from their lowland homes huddled in concentration camps behind the basin's setback levee—and wondered if it would hold. The answer was expected tonight.

While life-saving forces speeded mobilization for action in the deep south, in the event the mighty Mississippi again conquers its banks, high army officials at Washington expressed belief that the removal of families below Cairo could be confined to small, low-lying areas.

FULL EVACUATION UNLIKELY
Major-General Mallin Craig, United States army chief of staff, said the possibility of general evacuation was remote. He warned crops area commanders, however:

"It appears that a very difficult fight must be made to hold the main-line levees along the Mississippi below Cairo, particularly in the Memphis district."

At New Orleans engineers hoped to divert a portion of the waters into Lake Pontchartrain.

REPORTS DELAYED
While the Ohio showed signs of losing its grip on a wide area between Pittsburgh and Cairo, Ill., it became apparent the full story of the havoc will not be known for days.

Louisville, once gay Derby town, now desolate, buried its dead in trenches as the flood waters began to subside. The number of lives lost was

TRIAL SOON ON FRAUD CHARGE

Los Angeles, Jan. 28.—Joseph Painter counsel for Mrs. Violet Wells Norton of Winnipeg, said today he would demand a blood test of Clark Gable to "determine" if the film actor is the father of Gwendolyn Norton, his client's thirteen-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Norton is under federal indictment with Jack Smith, Los Angeles private detective, and Frank Keenan, retired Winnipeg railroad worker, on charges of attempting to obtain money from Gable on a fraudulent claim of parentage.

"I will ask also that Gable appear in person before Mrs. Norton so she may determine, if possible, whether the actor is the Frank Billings she knew fourteen years ago in England," the attorney said.

W. Gariepy Drafts Query in Commons on Canadians Going to Spain; Quebec Premier Says Commu- nists Get Passports

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Several members of Parliament take a serious view, it is understood, of a statement credited to Premier Duplessis of Quebec that Communist bodies in Canada were able to secure passports to enable young men to go to Spain.

Wilfrid Gariepy, Liberal, Three Rivers, Que., sought to question the government in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, but the Speaker ruled him out of order. He later stated he would bring it up today by placing a question on the order paper. He contended, before he was called to order yesterday, the words of the Quebec Premier constituted serious charges against the federal government.

Premier Duplessis was quoted as saying in a speech at Three Rivers: "In the province of Quebec Communism is so well organized—and here as Attorney-General of the government I take the responsibility of my words—lately some money was distributed to young men of the province of Quebec to enlist in the Spanish Communist army. They were furnished with Canadian passports, put on a train and sent toward Spain to fight for the Communists.

"If we have reached a point to have here an organization able to get passports from the federal authorities without the knowledge of the federal authorities, I must say we have gone very far, because I do not believe for a moment that the federal authorities had anything to do with it."

FROM TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Five Canadians, members of the international contingent of thirty volunteers who landed at Cherbourg yesterday on their way to Spain to fight for the Spanish Government, were all residents of Toronto, according to the local office of the Communist Party in Canada.

Recent dispatches said the question of dealing with Canadians who enlist on one side or the other in the Spanish conflict was engaging the attention of the government.

Whether the Foreign Enlistment Act applies to a civil war is regarded doubtful by some legal experts. The government was stated to be considering an order-in-council declaring specifically the act does apply.

Deaths of Four Are Investigated

Burnley, Lancashire, Eng., Jan. 28.—County authorities today sought an explanation of the deaths of three men and a girl in the lonely moor country behind Worthorne.

Those found dead were Sarah Wilkinson, eighteen, daughter of a tenant farmer; A. Pickup, the farmer's father-in-law; and Joe Scriven, farmhand, whose bodies were discovered in a field, and Harry Blackburn, whose body was discovered in the farmhouse with a shotgun nearby.

Nazi Government Objects to Ex-general's Criticism of Spain Aid

Canadian Press From Havas

Berlin, Jan. 28.—General von Ludendorff's criticism of aid given Spanish insurgents by Germany resulted in confiscation of one of his newspapers yesterday evening.

The Great War commander on the western front asserted Germany was allowing itself to be led by Premier Mussolini, whom he termed "a tool of the Roman Church, Free Masonry and the Jews."

Gen. Ludendorff's article, "The Witches' Sabbath," appeared in his newspaper, Am Heiligen Quelldeutscher Kraft, subscribed to by 75,000 followers of the Teutonic Neo-paganism cult.

Gen. Ludendorff, who supported Hitler in the Munich "beer hall putsch" years ago but resigned from the Nazi party in 1933, asserted the "professed volunteers" streaming into General Francisco Franco's insurgent ranks had been ordered into Spain by foreign powers.

"A soldier fights for his country, but not for interests that he doesn't understand," he wrote.

Comparing the Italian-German stand with the position taken by Britain and France, Gen. Ludendorff charged Mussolini with seeking to turn Spain into a Fascist province of the Roman Empire. He asserted Germany was unconsciously being drawn under the domination of the same "occult forces" which precipitated it into the disastrous war of 1914-18.

COMMISSION
COST IS $94,562

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, yesterday told the House of Commons the total amount spent for or by the National Employment Commission was $94,562.

Answering questions asked by Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F., Weyburn, Sask., concerning the personnel, salaries and expenditures of the commission, the minister said A. B. Purvis, chairman, and A. N. McLean did not receive a salary in 1936 and their salary rate was $20 a day, less 5 per cent.

Alfred Magola received $1,843 as salary last year and his salary rate was similar to that of Mr. Purvis and Mr. McLean. Tom Moore received a salary of $8,550 last year and his salary rate was $9,439 and the salary rate $20 a day less 5 per cent. W. A. Mackintosh received a salary of $1,425 and E. J. Young $3,021.

J. F. Pouliot, Quebec M.P., Scores Use of Cartage Animals By Dragoon Guards at Opening of Parliament

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—As a man "who tamed horses in his youth," Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal member for Temiscouata, Que., yesterday evening criticized anew the "use of cartage horses and improperly trained riders" as the Governor-General's mounted guard at the opening of Parliament.

Blaming the officers in charge of the escort "who seemed to lack any sense of the ridiculous," he told reporters the officers ought to be discharged for allowing "such a clumsy performance" as that given by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards at the parliamentary opening last January 14.

HIRED HORSES

The Dragoon Guards were cavalrymen of the non-permanent active militia. Horses for the occasion were hired from Ottawa livery stables, Mr. Pouliot said.

"I don't blame the riders, but the horses they were riding are more accustomed to the delivery of bread and milk than to state ceremony. Those heavy livery horses made an infernal noise that day. Surely the cavalrymen who are chosen for the Governor-General's mounted guard should be all properly trained army men and their horses the very best."

Just out of the hospital here after an attack of influenza, the Quebec member claimed to be an equestrian who learned to ride at a tender age, "when I had to stand on boxes to reach the horse's back."

Onetime ownership "of a very fine hackney mare" and his possession of a Mexican saddle were submitted by Mr. Pouliot as evidence he knew about horses.

Conference On Sugar Called

Associated Press

Geneva, Jan. 28.—The League of Nations secretariat yesterday announced an international conference to consider the possibility of an agreement on production and marketing of sugar would be held in London in April.

The call for the meeting is an outgrowth of a suggestion made at the World Economic Conference in London in 1933. A communiqué said the secretary-general of the League, acting as secretary of the adjourned World Economic Conference, would issue invitations to the governments concerned within the next few days.

CHURCH GROWS AT JAMES BAY

Membership Increase Reported at Annual Meeting

In spite of the inclement weather Monday evening the annual congregational meeting of the James Bay United Church was largely attended and most encouraging reports of the year's work were presented by the leaders of each department.

H. W. Davey and Justin Gilbert reported for the board of stewards showing the finances in a healthy condition.

Mrs. Cecil Davies reported for the Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. Alex McKenzie is the president. During the year the aid had contributed over $800 to the work of the local church.

Mrs. T. Southern, for the W.M.S., said the society had practically reached its objective notwithstanding many difficulties and much sickness.

Rev. W. R. Brown, reporting for the board of session, showed an increase in membership and a healthy spiritual condition.

E. A. Matcham and Cecil Davies gave encouraging accounts of the envelopes and the cent-a-meal boxes. Last year's board of stewards was re-elected and proposed improvements to the social hall discussed. The thanks of the congregation were extended to the various organizations for their splendid work and co-operation during the year and to Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Brown for their inspiring leadership.

Appreciation of the long and faithful services of F. W. Davey as superintendent of the Sunday school and regret at his resignation was expressed. Frank Schroeder in reporting for the Sunday school intimated that Miss Louis Noble had consented to become the new superintendent.

Big Timber Area Under Option

Montreal, Jan. 28. — Hon. Peter Cashin, former Newfoundland Finance Minister, announced 1,550 square miles of Labrador timberland on Hamilton Inlet had been optioned to Bowater, British pulpwood interests affiliated with Lloyd's paper mills. Shortage of pulpwood, he asserted, had caused European paper producers to look to this continent for their raw materials.

DUTY CHANGE IS PROTESTED

Tariff Board Urged Not to Grant Increase in Asbestos Brake Linings

Protest against a proposed change in the duty on asbestos brake linings which, local dealers say, will mean to automobile drivers an increase of 35 to 50 per cent in the cost of linings, has been lodged with the Canadian Tariff Board.

Manufacturers of brake lining in Canada have an application before the board for a change in the duty from 25 per cent ad valorem to 25 cents a pound. This would mean an increase in the present duty on asbestos brake linings and clutch facings for automobiles by from 2 to 4 cents a foot.

Local dealers point out that the weight of $1.00 worth of brake lining is two pounds, so that the duty would be 50 cents on $1.00 under the proposed method, instead of 25 cents. The duty, they say, would hit hardest the low-priced linings used by the great majority of car drivers in Canada. Moreover, as the production in Canada is in the hands of two or three big concerns, it would create a virtual monopoly by practically barring out the product from the United States from which the bulk of the imports come.

Wholesalers and jobbers throughout Canada have protested the proposed change in duty, local dealers state.

Drew Pig As Grab Bag Prize

It won't be long now before the George Vanderbilts stop having such fun as that pictured, for they will soon start on a rigorous five-month scientific expedition to the South Seas. Meanwhile, they are enjoying themselves at Palm Beach as on this occasion, when Mrs. Vanderbilt drew the little pig as her grab-bag prize. On the South Seas expedition, they will study new specimens of fish.

After participating in several amusing games, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. T. A. Penketh, served delicious refreshments. Musical Is Enjoyable Affair

Mrs. Gordon Cameron Hostess to Musical Art Group

The Victoria Musical Art Society held its first afternoon musicale of the year yesterday, when about sixty members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron, Runnymede Avenue, who generously opened their charming home for the occasion.

Mrs. Cameron was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Allon Peables, president of the society, and Miss Dorothy McKicking, president of the junior branch which convened the programme.

NOTED ARTISTS COMING

Mrs. Peables, in her little address of welcome, preceding the programme, expressed the thanks of the senior group to the hostess and the artists and to the junior group for convening the programme. She called the members' attention to the musical treat promised at the society's concert on Wednesday evening, February 10, at the Empress Hotel, when Mary Ramsay, Scottish pianiste, and Anders Timberg, Swedish tenor, will be the guest artists. This recital is being arranged in co-operation with the National Council of Education, under whose auspices these noted musicians are touring Canada. Tentative plans are being made by the Musical Art Society to arrange a luncheon in honor of the two artists during their stay in the city, definite arrangements to be announced later, Mrs. Peables stated.

The afternoon's programme opened with two piano solos by Mrs. C. S. Beals, who gave sensitive interpretations of Mozart's "Pastorale" and "Valseque," by Mokre; Alva Northcott, young violinist, whose numbers included the Beethoven Sonata No. 12, with Miss Gladys Hewlings lending artistic support at the piano, and Miss Elsie Friend, who pleasingly sang Puccini's "I Vespri di Sicilia," "Sickness to Fly," and the Spanish serenade, "Come Love With Me," by Carverall.

ORIGINAL POEMS

Miss Nellie Scowcroft, who is senior adviser of the junior group, rounded out the programme with a pot-pourri of verse, including several by Christina Rossetti, "The Old House," by Florence Jones Hadley, a group of her own charming poems, including "Remembering," "Thoughts After a Summer Shower," "April," and "When Snow Was on the Ground," and concluding with "A Scottish Proposal," by Jerome K. Jerome, a typical bit of pawky Scottish humor.

At the conclusion of the programme tea was served in the dining-room, Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw, who convened the tea arrangements, and Mrs. Allon Peables presiding at the attractively-arranged table with its central bowl of daffodils and asparagus fern flanked by blue tapers in crystal sconces. Assisting with the serving were Miss Dorothy McKicking, Mrs. T. W. A. Gray and Mrs. S. D. Markham.

Rev. E. W. Horton, pastor of the First United Church, the guests sat down to an excellent supper. At the conclusion of the supper, Rev. Horton, on behalf of those present, wished Elton a very happy birthday, noting that the sincerity of the greetings lost nothing by being a little late in their expression. The guest of honor acknowledged the kind greetings and good wishes, and was accorded a hearty round of applause and the hostess was also thanked for their hospitality. With Gus Michaux's orchestra supplying the melodies the guests spent the remainder of the evening in dancing. Later on each one present was given a piece of the birthday cake, the young host presiding at the cutting ceremony. During the evening Sam McKenzie, violin; Mrs. A. Main, piano; and Hugh McKenzie, trumpet, entertained the gathering with selections and were heartily applauded. Invited guests were: Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, Mr. Treloar Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Williams, Mr. W. G. Robson, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Simpson, Miss Noel Peaton, Mr. Phil MacDonald, Mr. R. G. Thorsen, Mr. Ken M. MacDonald, Miss Myrtle Collingwood, Miss Reita Smith, Miss Sheila O'Connell, Miss Isabel Dickson, Mr. Gordon Rogers, Miss Kay MacDonald, Miss Bessie Sauter, Mr. Gordon Hilsop, Miss Molly Laitly, Mr. William F. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. P. MacDonald, Master Colin MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. George Camplin, Miss E. Thomas, Mr. Gordon Dunaway, Miss Alice Tull, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. MacDougall, Mr. and Mrs. H. Woodford, Mr. and Mrs. M. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Main, Mr. and Mrs. Sam McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. D. MacKenzie, Miss Charlotte Crawford, Mr. Alex. Crawford, Miss Lauretta McCall, Mr. Frank Holdridge, Mr. Bill Irvine, Mr. Gordon Scott, Mr. Hugh McKenzie, Miss Winnie Robb, Miss Mary Dickson, Mr. Doug Balfour, Mr. Jim Randall, Miss Ethel Hooper and David McKenzie.

Honoring Miss Gertrude Partridge, a February bride-elect, Miss Kathleen Brinkman entertained yesterday evening at her home on Cambrian Street, with a delightful shower. The many lovely gifts were concealed in a cleverly constructed ship. Later a buffet supper was served from a prettily-decorated table, centred with an arrangement of spring flowers. The invited guests were: Mrs. Frank Partridge, Mrs. Angus Campbell, Mrs. Don Smith, Mrs. W. J. Brinkman, Mrs. Gleason, Mrs. Whitwell, Mrs. H. S. Hamill, Mrs. J. Lorenzen, Mrs. L. Shanks, Mrs. Donaldson, Mrs. Slocumb, Mrs. Kempton; the Misses Beatrice Muttow, Peggy Morrison, Eva Ball, Violet Kirby, May Clarke, Nellie MacFarlane, Edith Brand, Ardis Armstrong, Ellen Ward, Myrtle Merkle, Winnie Knapp, Betty Hamilton, Winnifred Brinkman, Kathleen Cowie, Jennie Dickson, Nancy Warwick and Margaret Brinkman.

About fifty-five intimate friends were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, 2836 Shelbourne Street, yesterday evening at a well-arranged party and dance held at the Douglas Hotel, to celebrate the twenty-first birthday of their son, David Elton Vincent, which took place on January 22. Ask Equality For Women Workers

London, Jan. 28.—If the Open Door Council has its way, the projected Factories Bill to be considered by Parliament at this session will impose no restrictions on women that do not apply equally to men.

The O.D.C. complains that "the adult industrial woman wage-earner remains the eternal minor, classed in industrial legislation with the young person... and paid at rates below the level of unskilled male labor." "What is needed is a revolution in the status of the woman wage-earner and in our attitude towards her, her work and her worth."

The winter sun was warm and the breeze that drifted in from the bay was mild. The long quay at the waterfront of the little seaport of San Lorenzo was almost deserted. Paul, perched on a metal bollard, raised at the edge of the quay to receive the mooring lines of the fishermen's boats, and filled his pipe.

He was discontented—discontented with a life that was too easy, a freedom that was too free. The sailor had gone out of things, somehow. When first he came to this spot he had risen each morning with a sense of adventure, a zestful asking what new joy the day was going to bring him. Now, he found, he arose moodily, half the time, illogically resentful of the day's scheduled diversions, wishing that they had not promised to time on so-and-so's yacht or that they had not promised what's-her-name to drive to Monte Carlo for the weekend.

He puffed at his pipe and looked along the peaceful waterfront. A small sailboat lay moored fifty yards down the quay; a trim craft with white hull and mahogany trim, its bright work gleaming in the sunlight, its sails neatly stowed in a shipshape harbor furl. Someone's pleasure boat, clearly, not a fishing craft. He would stroll along presently and have a look at her; in fact, come to think of it, he would stroll along right now.

As he walked nearer, he saw someone on the boat; a lean, sandy chap in paint-stained duck trousers and a ragged jersey, who was engaged just then in hanging a hand-lettered sign on the starboard rigging, facing the quay. This man looked up as Paul came to the edge of the quay. He was apparently a man of thirty, or thereabouts, tanned a rich brown by the sun and the salt winds. He smoked a corncob pipe and he had friendly blue eyes. The sign he was hanging said, "For sale," and as he caught Paul's eye he grinned and asked, unexpectedly, "Want to buy a boat?"

Paul took his pipe out of his mouth and gaped at him. Buy a boat? Well, why had not he done that months ago? He had been an ardent yachtsman, proud of his ability to get as much out of a small craft like this as any man. A boat, now—a trim, seaworthy little thing like this one—why, that would give some point to his existence here. It would restore to his daily life that lost savor.

Paul climbed the low iron rail at the edge of the concrete quay and lowered himself to the boat's deck. The man took his hand in a shrewd grip. "My name's Coffin," he said. "Jonas Coffin. The boat's named La Sylphide. I didn't name her."

"My name is Ferrone," said Paul. "I take it you don't approve of La Sylphide as a name?"

"I do not. What's a name like that mean, anyhow? Down east where I come from they give boats names that mean something. You name your boat for your girl, say, like Ann McKay, or you name her something gay like Whitecap, or something fancy like Nightingale. But La Sylphide!"

"Well," said Paul, who was beginning to like this strange sailor, "if she was your boat why didn't you change her name?"

"Didn't get around to it. You see—oh, well, it's a long story. Let's take a look around her and then I'll tell you about it." La Sylphide proved to be a sloop, thirty-seven feet over all, self-top-sail rigged and equipped with an auxiliary gas engine which was housed in a casing sunk in the floor of the cockpit. She drew five and one-half feet of water, said Coffin, was sturdy enough for deep-sea cruising, handled uncommonly well when beating to windward, and could be trusted to keep within two points of her course with a lashed tiller.

"Well," he said, "it's like this. You see, I come from Maine—that's in America. Another fellow and I, we came over here for six months to paint. Well, that was three months ago. In these three months I found out I'm never going to be a painter."

"I was a fool to sink all my dough in this boat," he said. "But she sure is a sweetheart. How about it; you want her?"

"Yes. How much do you want for her?"

"Three thousand dollars would be just right," said Paul, thereby giving Jonas Coffin, who had expected half an hour of haggling, the surprise of his life. "Can I take possession at once—today?"

"You sure can," said the American.

leaving himself away from the diverting speculation about what might have happened if he had asked for $5,000.

"Well," he said, "let's get up to the city hall and sign those papers." Two hours later Paul returned to the quay alone. He stood by the rail looking down jubilantly at La Sylphide—soon, he thought, grinning, to be the Irene, in memory of a vanished schooner. He saw himself whirling long hours and days away out in the bay with this trim little sloop, and the prospect was bright. With a skipper's tiller in his hand and the salt spray on his face, life would have zest once more.

Ardath received the news of his purchase of the sloop with a murmured, "Oh, darling, how nice!" and she dutifully made a tour of inspection over the little boat's compact and robust beauty, but she was quick to admit that she was content to admire the craft from a safe and stable vantage point on the shore.

He himself was as delighted with the boat as he had expected to be. Voluble Jonas Coffin had not over-stated its qualities; it was sturdy and rugged, it showed a neat turn of speed, and it rode the waves with a light buoyancy that spoke well of its qualities as a deep-sea cruiser. True to his promise, Paul renamed it "Irene," with a smile for the quaint New Englander from whom he had bought it.

And he found, as the weeks passed, that the boat was not only a diversion but a place of refuge. For it was becoming increasingly hard to pretend that life at the villa was going along smoothly. There were a thousand little sources of irritation that had not existed before; irritations that came out of his own steadily mounting dissatisfaction with the life he was leading.

There were dozens of villas along the coast, and Paul and Ardath had dined, teased, danced, lunched and gone to costume balls, it seemed, in each one of them—and had, in turn, presided at similar functions. There were half a score of casinos, night clubs and similar attractions within two hours' ride of the villa; Paul was familiar with all of them by now, knew them to the distraction of boredom, could remember in his sleep just how the head waiter in each one flourished his menu card, just how each exit from Broadway blues singer rolled her eyes, just how each trap drummer tossed his sticks in the air and caught them again.

"Aren't we," he asked Ardath one afternoon, as they emerged from their dip in the sea and made their way to the villa, "aren't we seeing just a little more than we really need to do of these people?" She did not answer until they had reached the door of her dressing-room. She let him follow her in, and tossed her beach robe over a chair.

"Dearest, need we go all over that again?" she asked wearily. "We can't vegetate here in solitude, you know. And these people are nice. You used to like them."

It was about this time that Paul fell into the habit of spending a night on his sloop now and then. The first time he did it followed a more than ordinarily heated spat with Ardath; sulkily, he collected sleeping garments and toilet articles and went down to the snug little cabin of the Irene. He awoke the next morning, feeling unaccountably free and light-hearted.

It was after one of these nights on the Irene that Paul unintentionally brought about one of his sharpest quarrels. The morning was bright and fresh. His body was tingling from his plunge in the bay; and he strode up to the villa whistling cheerfully, feeling that life was simple, after all. He went to Ardath's bedroom. She was propped up among pillows, glancing at the morning mail and sipping a cup of tea from a bed tray.

Paul sat down beside her and slipped his arm about her shoulders. "Dearest," he said. She smiled and gazed at his chest playfully.

"I had a caller this morning on the boat," he said. A little ragamuffin named Pierre. He's about ten years old. His father runs that little tobacco shop at the end of the quay. Pierre swam all the way out to the boat to see me—it must have been half a mile. He came aboard as naked as a cherub. I put my bathrobe on him and we sat there and discussed the fishing business. He suggested that I take the Irene and go into the trade in earnest; he offered to be my manager and said he'd look out for my interests ashore and see that I got the best prices."

He grinned. "He's a great kid." Then he tightened his arm about her. "Ardath—couldn't we have a boy of our own?"

She said nothing. If she stiffened slightly beneath his arm he did not notice it so intent was he on developing the idea that had come to him.

"What a place to bring up a youngster!" he said. "He'd grow up brown as an Arab and strong as an ox. We could get a tutor down here. And we—well, have some point to our lives then, something real and great to bind us together and—"

"Paul!" she said, drawing away and turning to face him. "Are you insane?"

He stopped, taken completely aback, and stared at her. "A baby!" she repeated. "Paul, what are you thinking of?" He looked at her in mounting dismay.

"All because some street urchin swam out to your old boat! Paul, what could we do with a child if we had one? How could we bring one up here? And besides—" she put a hand on his wrist—"I'm not one of these healthy farm women. I'm—I she looked down at her slim, delicate body—"I couldn't. It might kill me."

Little red spots were glowing in her cheeks. Paul sat for a long minute, looking into her eyes, reading there nothing but defiance and angry surprise. At last he stood up.

"I'm sorry," he said, coldly. "I won't mention it again."

NIGHT ATTACK IS DESCRIBED

Two Men Accused of Robbing With Violence Admit Beating Visitor from Vancouver

Evidence that he was beaten by two assailants who made an unprovoked attack upon him while he crouched in the back of a sedan car parked in a lonely spot on Belmont Road on the night of January 7, was given in Provincial Police Court yesterday by John Foster, disabled ex-soldier from Vancouver, who came to Victoria early this year "to get away from Vancouver and find a respectable place to live in Victoria."

His story was the chief evidence for the Crown in the charge against Orville Keown and Robert Davidson, of robbing Mr. Foster of $13 with violence. Both accused elected for trial in the County Court.

Formerly charged with the two men was Mrs. Gertrude Scouler, a young married woman, but in court yesterday Sergt. Richard Harvey, prosecutor, said he had been instructed by the Attorney-General's Department to withdraw proceedings against her. Mrs. Scouler did not give evidence.

ADMIT BEATING
In the middle of the hearing, Keown addressed the court in his own and Davidson's behalf, stating they both pleaded guilty to the beating but they were not admitting the robbery.

The case was remanded until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock after most of the prosecution evidence had been heard.

In telling his story, Foster said on the night of January 7, about 9 o'clock he had visited a Broad Street Cafe. After a chicken dinner he had prepared to pay his bill to the cashier, when he was drawn into conversation with the two accused who were there with Mrs. Scouler.

Keown, witness said, had done most of the talking, acting as spokesman for the three. During the discussion witness said he told them he was a stranger in town and that it was lonely walking around.

Keown remarked "you won't find any beer parlors in town here."

"I told them I was looking for some place to get away from Vancouver and find a respectable place to live in Victoria," Mr. Foster testified.

INVITED FOR RIDE
Keown then invited him to go to the beer parlors. Foster continued "I said 'I don't drink' and he said, 'Well, come along anyway, for the ride, so, being Scotch, I guess, I accepted the offer," witness testified.

When the party got to Keown's car they had been unable to start it and Mrs. Scouler, witness continued, had suggested hiring a drive-yourself machine. Keown asked witness if he would mind putting up $3 as part of the deposit necessary to get the car.

"I didn't want to be a sticker, so I said yes and gave her $3 as that was the smallest bill I had."

When they had secured the drive-yourself machine, Keown got in the front with Mrs. Scouler and Davidson got in the back with Foster.

VISITED BEER PARLORS
Witness then told of visits to the Tudor House, licensed premises in Esquimalt, and another beer parlor. He could not remember the name of the latter. Witness said he had bought one round at Tudor House and he had only sipped part of his, to show his friendship. He did not, he said, make a practice of drinking.

After leaving the beer parlors, witness said, Keown had suggested going to "The Dog House" or "Dog House," he wasn't sure which, as he did not know the name of the premises.

They had then started driving and the witness thought they were headed towards the city. Keown was at the wheel, Mrs. Scouler beside him, and Davidson in the back with witness.

STOPPED CAR
"We drove out somewhere to a hill," Foster continued. "Keown pulled the car to the left side of the road and stopped. Keown got out of the front seat and Davidson got out of the back. Both doors were left open, leaving Mrs. Scouler and me in the car. Mrs. Scouler drew me into conversation and I leaned forward from the back seat to talk to her."

"All of a sudden she drew away from me. Then I felt a bump on the left side of my head. Then I saw Keown get in the left door at the back. I was struck again. When I came to again, I was on my knees in the back with a man on both sides of me. My arms were powerless, I saw Keown.

"DON'T MURDER ME"

"I said, 'If you want what few dollars I have on me, you don't have to murder me.' Then they smashed me from side to side. Then Keown put his hand in my pocket and took out my purse. Then they smashed till I went unconscious. The next thing I knew I found myself on the grass at the side of the road, alone."

He went on to describe how he had staggered down the road to Esquimalt Lagoon where he had summoned assistance and called for the Provincial Police. The police took him to the city police station, after which he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was confined for nine days.

Blood-stained clothing worn by Foster the night of the attack was produced in court and identified by him and police officers as his clothing.

BADLY BEATEN
In reply to questions, he said his wallet contained $13, several receipts and some sweepstake tickets. His injuries had included head injuries, cuts and bruises about the face and a beating on the chest which discolored his body. He said he was a 75 per cent disability case, suffering from gas, neurasthenia and tuberculosis.

Constables Frank Pomeroy and Gerald Davis testified they had responded to the accused's call. They had taken him to hospital and conducted the later investigation. Const. Davis said while driving out to Esquimalt Lagoon for Mr. Foster, they had seen a green Dodge car, answering the description of the drive-yourself machine, driving towards the city. The car was later found and taken to police headquarters, where blood stains were found on it.

Evidence of having seen the two accused with Mrs. Scouler and Foster at the Tudor House was given by Arthur Walker, Langford; Wilfred Goude, barman, and William Allan, waiter. Detective Walter Calwell gave evidence of arresting Davidson in the city. Dr. J. H. Moore gave medical evidence.

WELFARE PLAN UNDER REVIEW

Vancouver "Y" President Tells Central Exchange Pros and Cons of Chest

The pros and cons of the federated budget, or community chest, system of financing welfare work, as revealed by several years of operation in Vancouver, were laid before the annual meeting of the Victoria Central Exchange yesterday, by J. D. McMartin, president of the Y.M.C.A. in the mainland city.

Mr. McMartin reviewed the financial campaign position of his own association both before and after the institution of the system, and quoted at length from a report compiled from the opinions of more than 100 "Y" general secretaries in points all over the United States.

The report indicated the community chests had weathered the depression remarkably well and seemed established as a permanent and benevolent portion of welfare work. It indicated that the system generally kept a healthy balance between the relief agencies and those interested in character-building work.

ADVANTAGES OF SYSTEM
Advantages of the community chest system were to be seen both from the point of view of the public and of the organizations financed under it. Mr. McMartin believed.

It eliminated unworthy appeals and prevented the overlapping of objectives of other groups, it assured the public that the money collected would be wisely spent, and it removed the multiplicity of appeals on citizens while spreading the canvassing more evenly over a much greater section of the population. For the workers, the system eliminated the many calls on their time under the old system.

Mr. McMartin also believed the chest system broke down class barriers in collecting for welfare work.

LARGER COLLECTIONS
Before federation there were thirty-one separate agencies making appeals in Vancouver, and they collected $147,700 from 4,500 persons in one year.

In the first year that centralized system went into effect—$369,574—was collected from 20,520 subscribers.

One of the chief advantages of the system as far as the agencies were concerned was the low cost of collection of the money, said Mr. McMartin. The overhead of the Vancouver Welfare Federation averaged 7 1/2 per cent, against 10 to 12 per cent for the Y.M.C.A. in pre-federation years, and as high as 30 per cent for some organizations.

The chief disadvantage mentioned by Mr. McMartin was in the loss of personal contact between the individual organizations and the public. However, he believed that friendship could be maintained by suitable publicity.

Mr. McMartin was introduced by F. E. Winslow, chairman of the Central Exchange, and thanked by Alderman J. A. Worthington, chairman of the city relief committee.

HOLD MEETING AT ST. JOHN'S

Encouraging Reports Heard and Officers Elected at Annual Session

The annual vestry of St. John's Church was held on Tuesday night, in the Sunday School auditorium, with Rev. G. B. V. Bolster presiding in the absence through ill-health of the rector, Canon F. A. P. Chadwick. Mr. Bolster conveyed to the meeting the appreciation of Canon Chadwick for the loyal service of the church's officers and parishioners during the year, and added his own thanks for the welcome accorded himself and Mrs. Bolster on their arrival in the parish.

Look! Here's the Latest Cod Liver Oil Vitamins Now In Tasteless Tablets. Greatest Flesh Builder.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty-fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling Cod Liver Oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly and now you can get from your druggist real, genuine Cod Liver Oil Vitamins in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups who ought to take Cod Liver Oil because it is a great vitamin food and builder of healthy flesh will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Thin, run-down, anemic men, women and children, who need to grow strong and put on flesh, should get a box of McCOY'S COD LIVER EXTRACT TABLETS, and if they don't put on 5 lbs. in 30 days, their money will be refunded.

One woman gained 15 lbs. in 5 weeks, according to her own Doctor—another 10 lbs. in 3 weeks—a very sickly child, aged 9, put on 12 lbs. in 7 months, now plays with other children and has a healthy appetite.

Just ask for McCOY'S COD LIVER EXTRACT TABLETS at any good druggist. Only 60c. a box.

The following officers were chosen for 1937: R. E. Burns, rector's warden; S. C. Hawkins, people's warden; E. J. Fatt, treasurer; Ken Hall, duplex envelope secretary; church committee, Dr. A. G. Price, C. Ties, R. H. B. Ker, W. A. Patterson, E. W. Meadows, C. M. Parrott, E. J. Fatt, J. Hooper, J. M. Nesbitt, and E. E. Richards. Mr. Meadows was re-elected treasurer of the Parish Hall fund.

Mr. Burns will serve his fourth term as Canon Chadwick's warden, and Mr. Hawkins and Mr. Fatt both held the same offices last year.

The following were named lay delegates to the Synod: Dr. Price, Mr. Hawkins, Mr. Richards, Mr. Patterson and J. M. Nesbitt. Delegates to the Rupert-decanal conference named were: Mrs. S. H. Brake and Dr. Price. Sidesmen chosen were: R. W. O. Savage, Mr. Meadows, Mr. Nesbitt, A. Knapp, F. Moorhead, C. Meadows, J. Dennis, R. Tubbs, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Hooper, Mr. Richards and Mr. Paver.

ENCOURAGING REPORT
The church warden's report, presented by Mr. Hawkins, showed that St. John's, oldest parish in the city, had made good progress during the year. The financial statement showed a number of large outstanding accounts had been wiped off and that considerable expenditures had been made during the year without any increase in the indebtedness of the church.

Reports were also submitted by Mrs. G. Kirk, on behalf of the Ladies' Guild; Mrs. G. Fuller, Senior W.A.; C. M. Parrott, Sunday School; Miss K. Smith, A.Y.P.A.; A. Paver, A.Y.P.A. Bible Class; Mrs. A. L. Johnston, Choir; Mrs. A. Kirk, Chancel Guild; and E. W. Meadows, Parish Hall fund.

Canadian Press
Melbourne, Jan. 28.—Preparedness and the need for rearming were urged yesterday by Rt. Hon. W. M. Hughes, war-time Prime Minister of Australia, in an address dealing with Germany's colonial claims.

This "insidious colonies propaganda," he said, was merely a plan to distract the German people's attention from the fact Chancellor Hitler was not solving the country's economic problems.

"Germany does not want colonies," he said. "She wants war."

As the ice in a glass melts, it displaces its own weight of water, and melts to a volume equal to the volume of water of that weight, thus causing no overflow.

Shore May Be Lost to Boston For Remainder of Season

Old Injury Puts Defence Veteran On Retired List

Ordered to Take Complete Rest; Bruins Oppose Rangers Tonight

Hapless Hawks Play Canadiens

When Boston Bruins hit the ice against Rangers in New York tonight, Eddie Shore will be far away from the battle, suffering from an injury that may keep the big fellow out of the game for the rest of the season.

Boston doctors have ordered a complete rest for the veteran defenseman and it is not unlikely he will be on the sidelines until next fall. Shore is suffering from an injury that developed last summer.

Tuesday night in the Ranger-Boston game he fell into the boards and aggravated an X-ray picture is being taken and doctors will study them before giving a final decision on when the rearguard may expect to get back into action.

Shore has been out of the game for varying periods all through the season and has never looked his real self. His bodychecking has lacked his old flourish and he has not been the playmaker of other years.

ROSS HOPEFUL

Art Ross, Bruin manager, is hopeful the veteran will recover before the playoffs, but considers his team is strong enough to make them even without him. Eight points up on Chicago Black Hawks, Bruins feel sure of a playoff spot.

This will try to do something about making second place when they meet Rangers tonight. They trail the New Yorkers by three points, largely because they dropped a 3 to 0 decision to Lester Patrick's men in Boston Tuesday.

The only other National League battle down for decision tonight brings together the Hawks and Canadiens in Montreal. No one can tell what Major McLaughlin's Chicagoans will do after that 9 to 0 defeat of Americans Tuesday, but the Habitués feel sure they will increase their lead at the top of the Canadian division to twelve points.

They have a five-game advantage over Montreal Maroons, who don't get into action again until Saturday, when they play Toronto Maple Leafs. To keep in trim during a six-day lay-off Maroons played an exhibition game at Three Rivers, Que., last night, dividing the team into two squads for the workout.

RUMBERG TO OPPOSE COX

Californian to Grapple With Spokane Heavyweight Here Saturday

"King Kong" Cox, Lodi, California, will return to Victoria Saturday when he will take on Hal Rumberg, young Spokane heavyweight, in the scheduled main event of eight ten-minute rounds on the wrestling card at the Tillicum gym.

In an interesting and entertaining bout here last week, Rumberg grappled to a draw with Donald McIntyre. He is an artist at handling out the rough stuff, but will have to open up and let himself go when he climbs through the ropes to battle with the "wild-man" from California, who makes it a practice to use all the rough and unethical holds he can muster.

A newcomer to the local squared ring will be Sator Jack Arnold. He has been doing quite a bit of grappling up and down the coast, and when he shows here it will be in the main attraction. Promoter, Fred Richardson, is looking around for a good opponent for him.

In addition to the two top bouts, a special event and a local preliminary will be on the card. The show will open at 8:35 o'clock.

"Original" Hoop Game Reproduced

Lots of Laughs as Teams Revert to First Type of Basketball in Exhibition At Madison Square Garden

Associated Press
New York, Jan. 28.—Basketball as played in 1892, the year of its conception at Springfield College, has at least one thing on basketball today—it produces more laughs.

Using the thirteen original rules posted on a bulletin board at Springfield College in 1892 by the game's founder, Dr. James Naismith, the first game was reproduced at Madison Square Garden last night.

Ten minutes of play with two nine-men teams produced only one goal—a long shot that settled into the peach basket and refused to bounce out. The referee used a ladder to retrieve it.

Two men were banished for personal fouls.

The players dived into the crowd for the possession of the ball whenever it went out of bounds, for the rules gave it to the player touching it first. The game proved to be a mixture of rugby, hockey, soccer and basketball as it is known today. The players wore shin and knee guards beneath their long trousers.

Four "old-timers," two of them players in that first game, were on hand for the exhibition.

Thousands Flee From Flooded Paducah, Ky.

As the full force of the flood was being felt in the lower reaches of the Ohio River, near its junction with the Mississippi at Cairo, Ill., Red Cross officials today rushed the evacuation of thousands of reluctant residents of Paducah. Comeback Caddell Star In Cage Tilt

Scores Three Points in Last Minute to Give Hoyle-Brown 37 to 36 Win Over West Saanich in City Final; Burnetts Even Series With Cardinals

Jack Caddell, the player who threw away his playing tops last season and said he was through, only 66 come out of retirement at the beginning of the present campaign, jumped into the spotlight at the High School gym yesterday evening. He led Hoyle-Brown to a 37 to 36 win over West Saanich Mercantiles in the first game of the series for the city senior B men's basketball championship.

With his team two points down and the time clock registering thirty-five seconds to go, Caddell dropped through the tying basket. Fouled just before the final gong the veteran stepped up to the line and scored the point that gave his squad a surprise victory. Caddell was high scorer for Hoyle-Brown with 11 points.

CARDINALS BEATEN
Burnetts and Cardinals, women's squads, went into a deadlock in their best-of-three series for the city intermediate A girls' championship, when the former pulled out of last night's tussle by a nose to win 22 to 21.

Cardinals registered a victory in the first game, 31 to 24. As play opened, West Saanich scored the initial tally, but Ken Fleming made the count all even a little later. After that Hoyle-Brown forged to the front and maintained their lead, holding a 20 to 17 margin at half time.

At one time during the session the eventual winners held a ten-point lead, but the suburban cagers whittled it down considerably before the interval. West Saanich rallied as the final stanza was ushered in and after eleven minutes of hard play jumped into the lead, 27 to 26. Keeping up the pressure, the suburbanites held their lead until the dying minutes of the hard-fought battle.

It was at this time that Caddell entered the picture in a big way. Late in the game Bill Levy was ordered to the bench on personals.

to be followed soon after by Karl Young, centre star for West Saanich.

Bob Whyte wore a big smile today for the victory of his Burnetts placed the team on an even basis with the Cardinals.

Burnetts were leading their oppo-ponents 9 to 7 as the first quarter expired, and at the half-way point had increased their margin by one point, the score being 13 to 10. Early in the third quarter the Cards evened the score on a basket by Mary Wells. During the next minute or so each team scored once, but P. Blakemore scored two successive baskets to push the Cards into a four-point lead as the quarter finished.

The Cards increased their lead to 21 to 16 as the teams opened play in the last quarter. At this stage, Doreen Beere of the Burnetts, who played a smart game, ran through to register a pair of field goals and a foul throw to even the count 21 to 21.

Four minutes were left. Both teams muffed a number of foul throws, but near the end Miss Beere looped a foul throw through the iron hoop. It proved to be the winning point, the score at the finish reading 22 to 21. Doreen Beere and Peggy White shared high scoring honors with 8 points each.

In the opening game, Trade-Ats scored a 55 to 8 win over Jennings Florists in a men's senior B tussle. T. Macedo 3-3, R. Macmurchie

Joe Louis Knocked Down In Training

Negro Heavyweight Kisses Canvas When Sparring Partner Eddie Malcolm Hits Him With Right Hand; Pastor Gets Boastful Over Outcome Tomorrow Night

Canadian Press

New York, Jan. 28.—The training camp knockdown of Joe Louis echoed around the flistic world today—and the loudest echo came from the camp of Bob Pastor, who meets the brown bomber over the ten-round route in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Without referring to the story that Louis dropped to the canvas after sparring mate Eddie Malcolm, threw a right hand punch at him in yesterday's training session, the bull-necked ex-collegian issued a statement declaring:

1. That Louis "couldn't dent a pound of butter" if he doesn't have extra bandages on his hands.

2. That Louis "would not even be a preliminary fighter if he was boxing in the bare-knuckle days."

3. That the State Athletic Commission should "compel Louis to live up to rules and regulations relative to bandages."

Then Pastor took a deep breath and predicted:

"I will prove conclusively I will stop Joe Louis within ten rounds Friday night if he is not allowed to wear extra bandages."

The Louis training camp episode was regarded variously as "one of those things" and as a legitimate knockdown. The eyebrow raisers pointed out that if Joe kissed the canvas from a punch it would have the same lure for the fight faithful tomorrow night as a spilled bottle of honey on a drove of flies.

The Garden expanded its gate prediction to a possible $125,000 sellout

Are You Guarding Your Child

THIS WAY—Asking Your Doctor About Home Remedies You Use?

Practically every mother knows the physician's rule. Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first. Children's specialists give this warning continually. And educators and writers on child welfare repeat it everywhere.

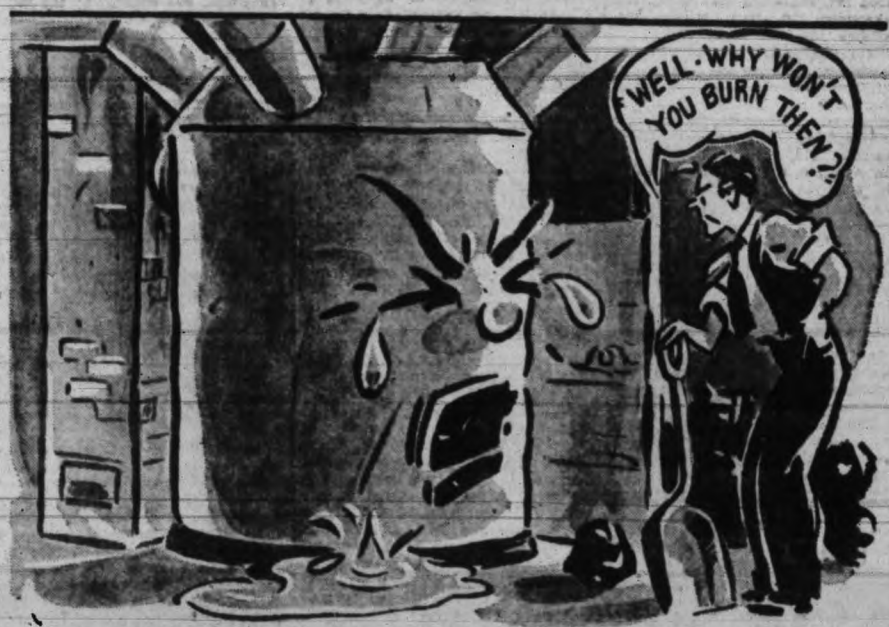

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children. Made by an original process in a laboratory devoted solely to making this important remedy; there is no other quite like it."

He Was Really In "Dog House"

Girl Discovers Uninvited Stranger Taking Refuge In Pet's Kennel

This is a true story of a man "being in the dog-house."

Yesterday evening a girl residing on Harbor Street went to her dog kennel to see if her pet was warm enough in the icy wind that was sweeping across the back yard.

As she pulled up the slide at the front of the kennel, a man yelled at her from inside the kennel. She dropped the slide and ran into the house.

City police were called, but found no signs of the man who was described to them by the girl.

RIOT APPEAL IS DISMISSED

Molland and Grange Lose Bid For Freedom When Counsel Fails to Appear

Richard Molland and Fred Grange, sentenced in Vancouver to two years' imprisonment on charges of being leaders of the riot in Hamilton last year, lost their bid for freedom today.

Their appeal from conviction was dismissed by the British Columbia Court of Appeal on the motion of J. Russell, K.C., counsel for the respondent, the Crown, when appellant's counsel, failed to appear in court.

The appeal was sent to the foot of the list when dates were set at the opening of the Appeal Court sitting here. Appellant's counsel was advised of the action, the court was told.

Mr. Russell demurred in his request for the dismissal, suggesting the case be struck off the list in order to permit a later appeal. However, on question by the court over the propriety of such a move, Mr. Russell changed his motion.

A luncheon will be held at noon at Speedie's Cafe and a meeting for members of the Trades and Labor Council and citizens who desire to be associated with the nation-wide movement for the encouragement of adult education.

NARCOTIC APPEAL MONDAY

The appeal of Patrick Canning, sentenced in Vancouver to seven years on a charge of conspiracy connected with the distribution of narcotics, was set over to Monday on the request of appellant's counsel, Donnan Worth.

Mr. Worth first asked the court to transfer the case to the Vancouver sittings in view of the fact an error had been made in the appeal books.

By that time, he said, the transcripts could be corrected.

Gordon Wismer, K.C., appearing for the Crown, told the court such action might give rise to complications. Should the appeal be delayed until the Vancouver session and should the accused be granted a new trial, the Crown would probably lose its main witness, who would not be available for a protracted period, he said.

The court suggested Mr. Worth have the books corrected and be prepared to proceed with the appeal on Monday. Appellant's counsel was satisfied with the time allowed.

ASSAULT APPEAL STOOD OVER

The appeal of John L. Congdon from conviction on a charge of assault and causing grievous bodily harm, heard in Vancouver, November 21, was transferred to the Vancouver sittings in order to allow Congdon opportunity to raise funds for his appeal books.

The request was made by Gordon Wismer, K.C., who appeared for Congdon.

Yesterday afternoon the court sat late to hear the appeal for Mike Punak, convicted and sentenced to seven years, five lashes and a fine of $500 or, in default, another six months, on two charges, one of conspiracy and another of distributing narcotics.

P.D. Murphy appeared for appellant. The court reserved its judgment until Monday next.

In his appeal, Mr. Murphy argued that the prisoner was only twenty-five years old, was not an addict himself and that the trial judge had been too severe in describing the prisoner as having dragged his wife into the traffic. He contended that the extreme penalty should only be imposed in rare instances. From the judgment of the Court of Appeal, he quoted decisions to show that that was the opinion of the court.

G. S. Wismer, K.C., for the Crown, submitted that the prisoner sent his wife out to collect the money and took no chance himself.

Mr. Birch-Jones has received a telegram from Dr. J. L. Biggar, Canadian commissioner of the Red Cross Society, stating that the best way to assist the flood victims is to contribute funds. The society, however, will accept non-perishable foodstuffs and new but not used clothing.

Cash contributions should be made immediately by those willing to help to Mr. Birch-Jones at 519 Belmont House. They will be transmitted through his office to the U.S. Red Cross Society.

Canadian Railways are carrying contributions made through the society without freight charges.

URGES CUT IN B.C. EXPENSES

Herbert Anscomb Declares Size of Legislature Should Be Reduced

Cost of government in British Columbia must be reduced sharply if the province ever hopes to get back to "so-called normal times," Herbert Anscomb, M.P.P., declared at a meeting of Ward Five Conservatives in the Campbell Building last night.

The Legislature itself should be reduced from forty-eight to twenty-four or thirty at the outside, he said. This move alone would reduce the number of demands on the government for public expenditures.

The gross debt of the province had increased $16,000,000 from March, 1934, to October 1936, and the sinking funds were short $10,000,000 at November 1. This could hardly be called a healthy financial condition, he asserted.

Despite record provincial revenues the government had made no effort to set aside sinking funds, except for the small amount required by inscribed stock issues, and had not attempted to finance itself out of current revenues, Mr. Anscomb said. Unemployment should be paid out of current revenue, just like education or any other service.

He charged the Workmen's Compensation with falling to liquidate its Alberta securities, mostly 4½ per cent, and would lose around $30,000 annually because of Alberta's act. It was common knowledge that Premier Aberhart would do something of the kind and steps should be taken to liquidate.

He reviewed departmental expenditures in detail and referred to various measures passed during the session.

R. A. Wootton, vice-president of the B.C. Conservative Association, gave an address on Conservative principles and policies, paying tribute to the work of Dr. F. P. Patterson, the new provincial leader.

Hubert Lethaby was chairman.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

British-Israel Association Again Names E. W. Abraham Head

The annual meeting of the Victoria and District British-Israel Association was held in the Foresters Hall on Tuesday night with E. W. Abraham in the chair.

Splendid reports dealing with the activities of the various departments were read and referred to the progress the movement had made during the past year.

The president thanked the speakers, workers and officers for their co-operation and stated that the association was run entirely by voluntary workers. He appealed for redoubled efforts this year.

The treasurer's report referred to the excellent financial standing of the association and the secretary drew attention to the fact that the adoption of titling has been a benefit to the headquarters fund. The association is run entirely by a voluntary staff and voluntary contributions.

An encouraging report of the activities of the bookroom and headquarters was read, showing its increased volume in the distribution of free literature and the sale of magazines and books, and a very comprehensive lending library.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Honorary president, W. H. Blackaller; president, E. W. Abraham; vice-presidents, N. Y. Cross and A. W. Arnup; secretary, W. Pesco; librarian, E. Ashley Cooper; literature convener, Miss E. M. Barker; room convener, Mrs. E. W. Abraham; prayer league convener, Mrs. G. E. Altire Coley, and a committee of R. B. Price, W. O. Pilling, A. E. Gibbs, Mrs. W. Johnston, Mrs. F. T. Smith, Mrs. D. M. Brake and Mrs. A. C. Cooper.

Victoria Doctors Do Not Like Payment Proposals; Further Discussions

Objections to the arrangements for the medical men under the B.C. health insurance scheme were registered at a meeting of Victoria doctors last night.

The doctors did not give out a statement of their views, but it is understood, they have agreed to negotiate further with the health insurance commission.

The criticism of the health insurance scheme by the medical men comes under two headings. It is stated first that a payment of $5.50 per year for each insured patient is not sufficient for the doctors, and second that it does not cover indigents who will continue to get service from doctors practically free.

Alon Peabees, chairman of the health insurance commission, showed today he had not been advised of any formal statement taken by the doctors on the scheme.

CAPITOL THEATRE

To taste the fruits of success as an opera star or enjoy ecstasy in love's retreat is the problem facing Lily Pons, the renowned diva, in her second starring musical comedy, "That Girl From Paris," playing at the Capitol Theatre with Gene Raymond and Jack Oakie in other starring roles.

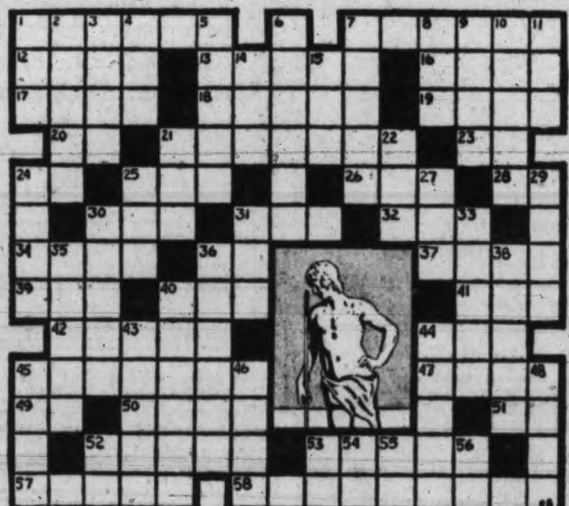

The diminutive singer plays the title heroine who deserts her manager at the altar and pursues a handsome young American to his country. Here she encounters a series of hectic experiences which lands her in jail, into love with two men and finally into marriage with one of her suitors.

Leeds, Eng., Jan. 28.—First case brought to court in the United Kingdom under the Public Order Act, banning political uniforms, resulted yesterday in a conviction.

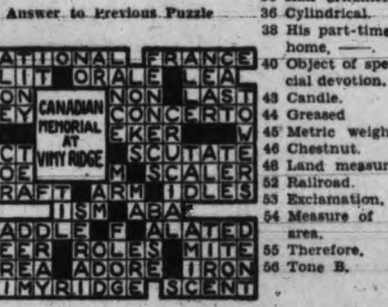

Magistrate Marshall decided William Henry Wood had worn a political uniform while selling copies of the Fascist publication, Action and the Black Shirt.

Wood was fined forty shillings (about $10). He was wearing a peaked cap with Fascist badges, a black shirt and a black tie when arrested.

ANN SOTHERN
AT THE PLAZA

Francis Lederer Also Plays in
"My American Wife"
Opening Here Today

Francis Lederer has never been given a better screen role than his current one in the Paramount film romance, "My American Wife," which opened today at the Plaza Theatre.

Nor has the star of "One Rainy Afternoon" ever been provided with a better screen male than his co-star in the present picture, Ann Sothern. "My American Wife" is light-footed romance, brought to the screen with a flair which only Lederer and a star of Miss Sothern's type could provide. The story itself, from a Saturday Evening Post feature by Elmer Davis, is refreshingly unique, and the cast lined up behind the principals is unusually capable. Heading the list is Fred Stone, veteran player who appears as an old Arizona pioneer with a western contempt for the spangles and airs of foreign nobility. Billie Burke, Ernest Cossart and Grant Mitchell are outstanding among those that follow.

FINE MUSIC AT OAK BAY

Marta Eggerth in "The Dancing Duchess"; Selma Reyes on the Stage

The new picture which opened today at the Oak Bay Theatre "Czardas-duchess" (Die Czardasfuerstin), produces varied feelings in one who has followed UFA productions since the days of "Variety" with Emil Jannings. "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" and other spectacular camera studies made during pre-Nazi years.

Marta Eggerth, the up-and-coming young ingenue, is a definite attraction, even though her singing leaves much to be desired. She has presence, ease and personality and a blonde beauty which screens well. In this light type of musical she is adept.

Shirley Temple
Here Tomorrow

Those modern day genii, studio technicians, recently performed one of their most amazing miracles when, in the short space of a week, a ten-acre section of the big rolling Twentieth Century-Fox lot was converted into a complete Chinese village, including the yellow, turbulent Yangtze River, for scenes in Shirley Temple's latest film triumph, "Stowaway," tomorrow at the Atlas Theatre.

William Darling, studio art director, aided by Director William A. Seiter, supervised the big construction. In addition to rice-straw thatched huts, winding dirt roads and lanes, Chinese chicken coops, and even the inevitable stray dogs, sixteen big Chinese junkies had to be built on the river.

The junks, painted various colors after the Chinese manner, were loaded with immense rice-tarps and rattan-covered boxes and bundles.

"Here Comes Carter," has been chosen as the second feature on his programme.

Cowboy Feature
At the Columbia

Adventure, romance and deft comedy touches have been blended by the expert hands of Director Howard Bretherton to form the most entertaining western film yet—"Three on the Trail," which opened today at the Columbia Theatre.

"Three on the Trail" is the fifth in the series of exciting films based on the adventures of "Hopalong Cassidy." Clarence E. Mulford's cowboy hero, and maintains the same high standards of entertainment that characterize the entire series.

The second feature on this programme is Richard Barthelmess in "Heroes for Sale."

A curious relative of the pearl oyster, the hammerhead oyster, is found in the Indian Ocean. It gets its name from its hammerlike shape.

Among Hindus, so sacred is the cow that to mention its dissection for food would defile the tongue, they believe.

"White Hunter"
Opens Tomorrow

Twentieth Century-Fox's amazing drama-of-savage-passions, "White Hunter," will open tomorrow at the Dominion Theatre.

Warner Baxter and June Lang, who created such a sensation in "The Road to Glory," are brilliantly cast. Assisting the star is an excellent and impressive cast headed by Gail Patrick, Allison Skipworth, Wilfrid Lawson and George Hassell.

Baxter is seen as a colorful hunter who accepts a commission to guide a big game expedition through a strangely wild country. Included in the party are Wilfrid Lawson, a powerful munition magnate; Gail Patrick, his wayward wife, and lovely June Lang, his daughter by a former marriage; Allison Skipworth, a shrewish hypochondriac, and George Hassell, her hen-pecked spouse.

Lawrence Tibbett and Wendy Barrie in "Under Your Spell" are the stars in the second feature on the programme.

REPORT ON BRITISH
VISIT TO MOROCCO

London, Jan. 28.—A British naval party which inspected Spanish Morocco recently in an investigation of reports of a German incursion was not permitted to visit the Melilla airfield. It was disclosed in the House of Commons yesterday.

Viscount Cranborne, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, said he "understood" there were about 150 Germans at Melilla, but there was no evidence of German troops having landed in the Ceuta or Tetuan areas.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX - I am seventeen years old and the mother of three children - a son eighteen months old and two daughters, six weeks old. When I was fourteen I eloped with a man fourteen years older than I am, who promised me the college education my parents had planned for me. He is a Yale graduate, and with his help and encouragement I now have the required credits to enter a state university. Last week he took me in his arms and with tears in his eyes told me he was ready to keep his promise to send me to college. My husband has every good quality of character, and I realize that I must develop mentally and spiritually if I am to reach the high standard of living by which he lives. I feel I cannot see clearly or think intelligently without the aid of further education. I want him to be proud of me, and our children to look up to me with the same respect and love they will show their father. But here is my trouble - leaving my children. My mother-in-law thinks it simply preposterous to leave my babies. My husband thinks I should go while my mind is receptive and the children too young to really miss me. It will take every grain of courage I have to take this step, but I can do it if I am certain it is the right thing to do. My husband is leaving it up to me. Can you advise a worried wife and mother? DIANE

Answer - And you think that a college degree is worth practically four years of separation from your husband and your little children? You are willing to leave your babies to the care of hired hands, to miss the sweetest part of their lives, to let some one else form the pattern of their character, which psychologists tell us is set by the time they are four years old?

Can you tell a college graduate by sight or conversation from the man or woman of equal native intelligence who got his or her education in the university of life? Aren't most of the wise and witty people you know those who have educated themselves by reading and thinking and experiencing things and who never saw inside of a college? Aren't the best housekeepers you know the women who learned to cook in their mothers' kitchens instead of those who majored in chemistry and domestic science courses? And as for it being any particular honor to go to college, good heavens, everybody does it nowadays. And it is no more a distinction to have been to college than it is to have been to the grocery.

Understand, I am not opposing a college education. It is fine for those who want it and can afford it, and if you had gone on from the schoolroom to college it would have been all right for then you were not hampered by other duties and obligations. But you chose your way of life, and that was away from the schoolroom, and you have no right to try to turn back. You have given hostages to fortune and it is more important that you keep your home together and rear your children and take care of your husband than it is for you to have a college diploma.

Anyway, all knowledge isn't put up in schoolbooks. There is no secret information in them that you cannot find in libraries. No culture that you cannot get by reading. The whole world of knowledge is free to you and you can take what you want of it at home as well as in college.

And, believe me, my dear, there is a wider and deeper knowledge than any college ever gives, a culture of the soul that comes from loving and being loved, of hearing children and rearing them, of making the sacrifices demanded of every wife and mother. It is a greater thing to be a Ma than it is to be able to write M.A. after your name.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX - I am a junior in college and I am entangled in a love problem. He is the nicest man in the entire world, has the most charming manners and is the most perfect gentleman in every way, but he is married. He says he respects his wife and they get along well together, but he does not love her as he loves me and he wishes to marry me some day. Am I foolish to spend my young life waiting for a man who is tied to another woman? Should I try to break up this romance where it is? CAROL

Answer - If you have one grain of sense in your head you will break off this shady love affair before you get into a mess that will leave you to wear bedraggled skirts the balance of your life. Just sit down and try to figure out what a girl gets out of a romance with a married man, and as you evidently lack the knowledge of life to do so I will give you a few pointers.

On the credit side of the ledger you can write down a sense of adventure that gives you a thrill. It makes you feel sophisticated and devilish to be risking your good name in having a married man for a boy friend instead of some decent lad whom you have known all your life. You get a kick out of meeting him on the sly in more or less disreputable places and in looking fearfully around to see if there is anybody there who knows who you are, tell your father or his wife. And it tickles your vanity to think that you have the power to take a man away from his wife.

On the debit side there is the loss of your good name, for everybody believes the worst of a girl who has a married sweetheart. There is the chance that you will be named as a corespondent and dragged through the muck of a divorce trial. If you are just enjoying a flirtation you pay for it by lessening your chance of making a good marriage for few men want a wife who has been talked about with a married man. And if you really love the man you go through all the tragedy of hopeless waiting for a man who cannot marry you, or if he does marry you, you have it always on your conscience that you helped to break up a home and orphaned little children. Flirting with a married man is playing with fire. Don't do it. You are sure to get your fingers burned. DOROTHY DIX.

Letters of the Alphabet

IV - FROM P TO T
The sixteenth letter in our alphabet - "P" - had an ancient name meaning "mouth." We might have had a hard time finding any picture of the mouth in the letter, but the old Hebrews wrote it in a way which made it look very much like an open mouth. Even the tongue in the mouth seems to be plain in the Hebrew letter!

In very early times "Q" had a line running from the top of the circle down through the bottom. Later the line came to be just a short tail hanging from the bottom of an "O." "Q" is just about always followed by another letter of the alphabet. When we write "Q" in any common word, it has "U" after it. Take, for instance, "queen," "quick," "quite," or scores of other words. It would be a mistake, however, to suppose that "Q" is never written without "U" after it - certain foreign names start with "Q" but have no "U" in them. Examples of such names are Quin, Quirwan and Qals.

We could get along very well without the letter "Q." The letters "KW" would do the work just as well as "QU." We could write "kwick," "kwite" and "kween," but first they would look a little "kwee." For hundreds of years of its history, the letter "R" was written very much like our present letter "P." Sometimes the loop was made so large as to go clear to the bottom of the downstroke, making the letter look like "D." In Greece, "R" was called "rho," and another old name for it was "resh," meaning "head." The Romans are the ones who put an extra downstroke under the loop, and make "R" look like the modern letter. "Shin" was an early name for "S." It meant "tooth." For a long while it was made like a modern "W," and then it looked like a pair of teeth. Certain Greek writers were not careful when they made this letter. They set it up on end, and gave it a form something like the present "S." The Romans changed the work of making the "S" look like the letter we write today.

"T" was the last letter in the old Phoenician alphabet. It had the name "tav," meaning "mark." In early times it was written in a way which made it look like an upright cross. Later the crossbar was put at the top of the up-and-down line, making it look like the capital "T," but not like the small "t."

Since the days of the Phoenicians, several other letters have been added to the alphabet. We shall speak of these in our next story.

Pats from roasting meats were used as illuminating fuel in early types of lamps. Later, in the Mediterranean regions, olive oil came into use for this purpose.
